

Breakfast Point, Now Open For Picnics In The Park

The Breakfast Point Waterfront Park offers a stunning view of the scenic upper harbour waters.

Breakfast Point is proud to announce the opening of several wonderful parks, walkways and roads.

Sitting proudly atop the highest point, The Village Green is not only complete, but already playing host to a variety of functions and activities; community cricket games, social gatherings, frisbee throwing and even some dog walking as neighbours meet and greet one another. Residents, friends and family of the stunning homes of Sovereignty and Garland Mews are certain to celebrate The Village Green, as it not only greets them from their doorstep, but also offers a spectacular grassy-green view from balconies and oversized windows.

Village Drive, which travels around the perimeter of The Village Green, has until now, been closed to traffic. On any given day, you will now find push-bikes, walkers, scooters and safety conscious vehicles enjoying the new point of access to The Village Green and surrounding homes.

For those who have eagerly anticipated the opening of the Breakfast Point foreshore, the newly planted grounds of The Waterfront Park are certain to delight. This stunning park, approximately 2 hectares in size not only offers the perfect spot for a lazy picnic or some catch-up novel reading, but also a wonderful place for friends and family to gather and admire the dreamy waters with all the marine activity.

Access to the Waterfront Park is provided via several walkways; one path continues from the Admiralty homes, down to the waters edge and left across the small bridge. The other path stretches from Admiralty Drive, below the hill, which will host The Breakfast Point Country Club and over the grassy slope directly to The Waterfront Park.

With so many wonderful places now open for residents and families of Breakfast Point to enjoy, it's no wonder that more and more people are choosing to call this wonderful waterside village, home.

The Breakfast Point Village Green is the perfect place to unwind and relax after a busy day.

From the Founders

We at Rosecorp are lucky to be surrounded by talented, energetic people who put their hearts and souls into their jobs. One is Drew Barnyak, the architect who designed the Community Hall. Drew is so excited to see his dream becoming a reality that he is passionately involved in every little detail of what will become a landmark building for Breakfast Point. It will be a special day when a crane places the spire in position and we are sure for Drew, a proud one. Indeed all of us can't wait to see it in place.

Another team putting its backbone into the job is the Landscape Solutions team. Tim Buckle and his crew work in all kinds of weather ensuring the Landscape plans prepared by Context are followed carefully, down to the last blade of grass. I didn't realise just how passionate the landscapers feel until I asked Michael Warren to write me some notes to put into this column about springtime gardens. I received the most wonderful dissertation on the Breakfast Point Gardens, which unfortunately is too long to be printed in this column but a portion of which I must share with you:

Founder's Column

"As spring arrives the Breakfast Point landscape will emerge from its winter dormancy. The soil and air temperature will start to increase and the plants and turf will respond with a flush of new growth. The gardens will transform from different shades of green and begin to flourish with Azalea, Camellia, Gardenia and Bougainvillea and many other flowers, with splashes of colour brightening the landscape. Springtime will bring a flush of large white lemon scented flowers to the Magnolia trees lining Magnolia Drive, welcoming you home from your busy day.

The Village Green will become a contrasting deep green against the backdrop of the white picket fence and blue sky, creating one of the most picturesque places to view the city skyline or to sit and enjoy a good book below the fig trees encircling the oval.

Walk down the meandering path through the Waterfront Park and your eye is drawn to the native planting on the embankment above the seawall. These native plants encourage the soothing sound of birds who will come to feed and nest as they make their way through the planting corridor that will progressively continue along the entire Breakfast Point foreshore.

Breakfast Point is certainly the place to be in spring - have a picnic, take a walk, or just read a book - make sure you get out and about and enjoy the wonderful landscape that is evolving and changing around you."

That was written by a man with a passion for his job and for Breakfast Point - thankyou Michael.

BREAKFAST POINT REALTY

THE ORIGINAL BOUTIQUE AGENCY

“Property in Breakfast Point is not only being snapped up by buyers from across Australia – the development is also attracting tenants from the other side of the world.” Alison Beveridge, owner of the boutique agency, Breakfast Point Realty, tells me. “Many people these days have a romantic notion of living by the water and enjoying park and water views from their home, and Breakfast Point offers this lifestyle – plus so much more.”

Breakfast Point Realty has been open for business for just over a year now. In that time, the fast-growing boutique agency has assisted families, young corporates, doctors as well as those waiting for completion of homes at Breakfast Point and not wanting to miss the experience of the waterside villages’ lifestyle, in finding the perfect place to let.

“The vision behind the agency was to offer people a complete renting service,” says Alison. “A service that not only provided a diverse range of rental properties at Breakfast Point, but also offered a personal touch such as helping new residents settle into their neighbourhood.”

“Tenants often need to find local restaurants, pharmacies, bakeries, doctors, transport and schools – I provide directories and my own personal choices.”

Sometimes tenants call after hours, having locked themselves out of their home and I am called upon to offer assistance. Other times, a tenant has travelled overseas for a period of time and needed mail collected and held, cars parked and car batteries disconnected. Another tenant needed help with moving – connecting phones and arranging for someone from the agency to be on the doorstep to assist with furniture delivery – I take pride in offering these services.

“I also extend my services into the welcoming and settling of tenants into the community. When new residents arrive, I provide a personal letter inviting them to join any social activities that may be organised within Breakfast Point, so they can quickly meet neighbours and become part of the community.”

Alison Beveridge of Breakfast Point Realty.

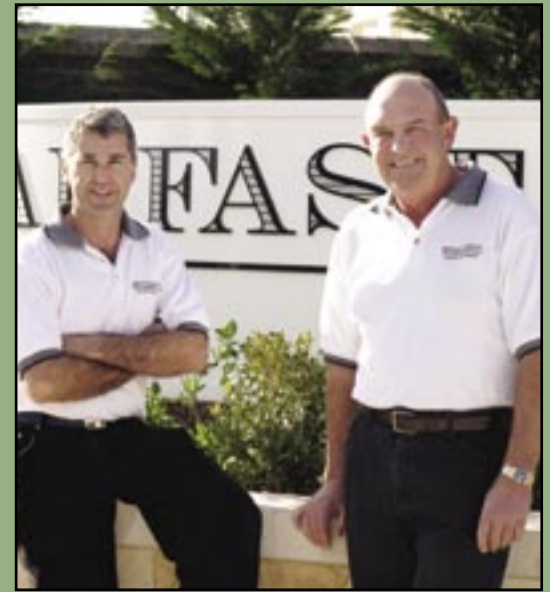

Dedicated to her values of personal care for tenants, Alison has positioned her agency within Breakfast Point. “How could I have my finger on the pulse with all that goes on here, and be completely available to my tenants if I were not positioned right on the village doorstep?” she asks me. “I think it’s important for my tenants that I devote myself to the community, understanding Breakfast Point backwards by living here myself, and so having an intimate knowledge of all that goes on.”

Offering a diverse range of properties for lease, Breakfast Point Realty specialises in quality lifestyle and affordable living. “We cater for all spectrums of the market,” she tells me “from fully furnished homes with a minimum 3 month lease, to 2 bedroom units with spectacular water views and undercover car-space, through to 3 bedroom apartments with all the bells and whistles: dramatic city and water views, 2 car lock-up garage, huge balconies, state-of-the-art kitchens and access to facilities.”

“For all of my tenants, the decision to move to Breakfast Point is definitely a lifestyle choice.” Alison continues. “Centrally located, Breakfast Point offers a convenient hub for workers, with so many head offices now located in the Western suburbs and the ferry into the city a relaxing 15 minutes from the Breakfast Point shores. People that choose to live here are nearly always making that choice based upon value for money and the realisation that their dream of living on the water and enjoying a holiday-like lifestyle need not be a dream!”

There are currently only half a dozen rental properties available to lease at Breakfast Point. And Alison is looking forward to the completion of the Garland Mews and Sovereignty apartments which will soon be available to tenants seeking stunning park and water views.

You can find Alison, Geraldine, Michelle, Karen or Tegan at 8 Magnolia Drive, seven days a week. For all Breakfast Point rental enquiries, phone 8765 9800.

MURRAY BEVERIDGE JOINS RUSSELL FENNELL IN THE ESTATE MANAGEMENT OF BREAKFAST POINT

At the end of June, Murray Beveridge and his wife Roslyn moved from the estate management of Cape Cabarita to allow for Murray to assist Russell in the Estate Management role of Breakfast Point. They reside in the estate managers residence located at Mulberry Hill. Murray is enjoying his new challenge, and his experience and knowledge will be of benefit to the Breakfast Point Community.

Golfing Residents of Breakfast Point are playing for the Breakfast Point Cup at the inaugural social golf day on the 22nd of August at the Massey Park Golf Club. The response to the invitation of the estate managers has been great. However at the time of print, the golf day will have been run and won and a good day had by all. The results will be published in the next Breakfast Pointer. The Breakfast Point Cup golf day will be staged annually, and it is intended to have golf days on a quarterly basis as well.

The Estate Managers advise there are two dates not to miss - pencil them in. On the 17th of October the first Cricket match will be played on the Village Green. A sausage sizzle and refreshments will be available on the day. On the 30th of October a meet and greet friendship dinner is being planned to welcome the new residents of Garland Mews and Sovereignty to the Breakfast Point Community. All residents are invited to attend what should be a great night out. Details of both these events will follow soon.

The Foreshore Park is nearing completion which will enhance the feel of open space at Breakfast Point. Considering the lack of rain and water restrictions, the overall presentation of the landscape and gardens is most satisfactory due to hard work and planning by all involved. Many people including journalists are amazed at the growth of Breakfast Point.

Spoilt for choice at Breakfast Point

If you have kids, a huge consideration when you're moving to a new home is whether it's close to good schools – or, better still, a range of good schools. Since one of the great attractions of living at Breakfast Point is that you can leave the car in the garage a lot more, it would hardly seem reasonable if you had to drive vast distances just to get the kids to school each day. So the very good news is that Breakfast Point is ideally situated at the heart of a major seat of learning. In fact, it's within easy reach of some of Sydney's oldest and most prestigious schools. These include eight private schools and a number of public schools, taking students from kindergarten to year 12. Public transport provides easy access to all of them, with regular bus services taking children directly to the schools or nearby railway station.

Just a hop, skip and jump across from Breakfast Point is the delightful Mortlake Public School. Located on Brays Road in Concord, it is within easy walking distance of the settlement. It opened in 1887 with 135 students, almost all of them the children of workers from the then nearby gasworks run by the Australian Gas Light Company, today it has 204 students from kindergarten to year 6.

The school continues to have strong ties with the Breakfast Point community and is eager to welcome newcomers to the area. The school's motto is "Excel by effort" and it promotes a "high parent involvement and an inclusive and diverse range of programs in a warm and caring environment".

Breakfast Point enjoys links with many of the local schools, just last year donating $100,000 to Concord High School to buy a school bus. "Breakfast Point is now an established member of the local community and we are keen to play our part in developing services for residents, kids and the disadvantaged in the local community," Bryan Rose, co-director of Rosecorp says.

Concord High provides a dynamic environment for its 750 male and female students, of which about 10 per cent come from overseas, particularly Korea and China. Last year the school launched a gifted and talented program in Year 7 that is proving extremely popular. In addition, there is an enrichment program offered in Year 11 in conjunction with a number of universities. One particular course is cosmology, which is run by the University of NSW. Just 20 students from around NSW are accepted each year and in the last three years one of those students has come from Concord High.

The school also offers a variety of vocational and educational courses from hospitality to construction and engineering. "We are an all-round school but we get some brilliant results in the Higher School Certificate,"

Rhana Fleming, the school assistant says. Facilities include a gymnasium, basketball courts and cricket nets, a theatre and an IMac room for digital film-making.

The school has a close association with the NSW Institute of Sport at Homebush, allowing aspiring Olympians to continue their education while they train. One such person was wheelchair road and track racer, Holly Ladmore, who competed in the 2000 Paralympics.

Concord is just one of the fabulous schools in the area. Homebush Boys' High School is a bit further afield and a much larger school with almost 1200 boys. It is described as a multicultural school with students coming from backgrounds as varied as Sri Lanka and India, China and Korea.

Homebush boasts a strong academic record with excellent results in the higher school certificate. As well as the traditional academic subjects it offers courses in hospitality and food technology, metal work, photography, creative arts and computers.

Breakfast Point also enjoys close proximity to many of Sydney's most prestigious private schools. Trinity Grammar School, an Anglican school, consists of a senior (Years 10 to 12), middle (Years 7 to 9) and a junior school (Years 3 to 6) at Summer Hill. It also has a preparatory and pre-kindergarten school (Pre-School to Year 6) at Strathfield.. In addition, there is an Outdoor Education Centre at Pine Bluff near Crookwell in south-west NSW.

Trinity states that its mission is to provide a "thoroughly Christian education for its boys, imparting knowledge and understanding of the world we live in, and recognising the importance of spiritual qualities in every sphere of learning". Facilities include the Roderick West School of Music, computer laboratories and a technology and design centre. More recently, the school has added The Founder's Building which features a new library, multi-media facilities and a drama theatre.

There are 1900 boys attending Trinity and John Edwards, the school's marketing manager, says developments such as Breakfast Point have spurred the school's growth. "What we provide is local access to parents who want their sons to have a independent school education," he says.

For girls, there is nearby MLC Burwood which also consists of three schools: the junior school with classes from kindergarten to year 5, the middle school from years 6 to 8 and senior school from years 9 to 12.

A school in the Uniting Church, MLC currently has about 1300 students enrolled. The principal Barbara Stone says: "MLC is a school for opportunity and diversity where we nurture each girl to be the most effective person she can be and encourage her to contribute to society. At MLC we embrace innovation and technology; we are modern Australia and we celebrate difference."

The school offers two paths to matriculation, via the NSW Higher School Certificate or the International Baccalaureate Diploma; a Gifted and Talented program with specialist classes in Years 5 & 6; and in Year 9, a remote campus experience in outback Australia is a part of the curriculum.

PLC Sydney is at Croydon and is a non-selective school of the Presbyterian Church and caters for girls from reception to Year 12. The school has 1300 students and boasts a "state-of-the-art" library, a music centre, computer laboratory, a world-class "sprung" floor gymnasium and multi-purpose hall, and a short-course outdoor swimming pool. A Performing Arts Centre and Indoor Aquatic Centre are under development. Among its aims, the college encourages each student to develop a Christian faith, achieve their full potential in all areas of endeavour and become proficient in communication, problem solving and new technologies.

Meriden is a smaller, Anglican school for girls at Strathfield with around 860 girls enrolled from Kindergarten to Year 12. Since the beginning of 1997, it has had a pre-kindergarten for boys and girls. It also has a gifted and talented program that begins in the junior school and carries through into senior school. Meriden's philosophy puts "a strong emphasis on and has a firm commitment to finding individual pathways of learning for each girl, spiritual development, total care, self discipline, tolerance, service and excellence". Facilities include a 25 metre outdoor heated pool and a gymnasium with artistic gymnastics equipment.

There are two major Catholic schools in the local area: St Patrick's College and Santa Sabina, both at Strathfield. St Patrick's takes boys years 5 to 12 and has 1340 students. But a word of warning, it is extremely difficult to get into. Students are generally booked in at birth and there is little opportunity to gain entry after that time. As a result the school does not advertise and does not have open days.

Santa Sabina College is the girls school and divided into three parts: Santa Sabina del Monte caters for students from kindergarten to year 5; the Martin de Porres Centre is the middle school and caters for students in years 6 and 7 and Santa Sabina is the senior school, taking students from year 8 to 12. There are about 1500 girls currently enrolled at the school. The college also has an outdoor education centre called Tallong which is situated on 32 hectares of bushland in the Southern Highlands. Students are encouraged to achieve "personal excellence in all things, to develop a broad range of interests and talents, to develop strong leadership skills and to be proactive in promoting justice in their world".

The Sydney Adventist College is also at Strathfield. It is co-educational, takes students from Year 7 to 12 and presently has 350 pupils. It is a Seventh-day Adventist community college but is open to all students without regard to their religion, ethnic background or national origin. It claims to have an excellent academic record but provides a broad education with an extensive indoor sports centre and gymnasium. Finally, for those Breakfast Point residents whose children have an artistic bent, there is the McDonald College in North Strathfield, Sydney's only private high school for gifted students in the performing arts. It was established to develop performance skills in acting, classical ballet, dance and music while pursuing an academic education. It is co-educational and has classes from kindergarten to Year 12.

The school began life as the Ann McDonald College of Dancing in the early part of last century but formally became McDonald College in 1984. In 20 years it has grown from 75 students to 500 today. The school motto is "strive for excellence" and emphasis is placed on "creativity, self-discipline, passion, self-esteem and academic, artistic and performance achievements". Students have appeared on stage and screen in productions such as The King and I, Home and Away, A Country Practice, Strictly Ballroom, Miss Saigon, Les Miserables, Sound of Music and The Bell Shakespeare Company. Students have been admitted to the prestigious New York City Ballet School; the Australian Ballet School; the Stuttgart Ballet School and the London Contemporary Dance School.

YOUR HOME

Effortlessly Elegant

THE NEW BREAKFAST POINT KITCHENS

When the Breakfast Point kitchens were first created, they evolved from the desire to integrate living. Long flowing benches were the subtle divider between kitchen, lounge and dining, inviting guests, family and friends to share the cooking space.

Today, innovative style and state-of-the-art appliances have taken this effortless elegance just one step further, offering integrated appliances such as the fridges and dishwashers which are discreetly dressed with tailored cupboard doors. The effect is a room offering itself to display, as effortlessly as the lounge or dining room.

Despite its humble beginnings in our grandparents' homes, the cupboards of today's Breakfast Point waterfront homes offer far more than a storage point. Deep shelf space is easily accessed as shelves glide smoothly in and out of cupboards like an open plan drawer, whilst products are secured with an elegant silver framework that surrounds the shelf.

Throughout the kitchen, storage space is endless as cupboards stretch from floor to ceiling, the elegant cabinetry and subtle paintwork ensuring doors maintain the traditional elegance of the kitchens, whilst the glass fronted cupboards above bench tops offer interior lighting for subtle display of kitchenware.

Island benches have also been introduced to the Breakfast Point waterfront homes; a stylish piece of architecture, carefully positioned to not only serve as a central point for dishwashing and serving, but also allowing the host a central point from which to prepare and serve food whilst still enjoying the company of guests, friends and family.

The first Breakfast Point waterfront homes will be completed in April 2005.

Display cupboards below the island benches, maximise space whilst offering the perfect place to exhibit favourite glassware or crockery. On the kitchen side of the island benches, integrated dishwashers tuck neatly into cupboards allowing dishes, cutlery and any other kitchen items to be seamlessly removed from the servery and stacked into the dishwasher without the blink of an eye.

Contemporary yet traditional, Breakfast Point kitchens offer the very latest in design and appliances within a framework that reminds us of the large open kitchens of a traditional home. Elegant stone benches greet sophisticated state-of-the-art stove-tops whilst traditional colour palettes offer seamless unity between the kitchen and adjoining rooms.

To experience the Breakfast Point kitchen, why not drop into the newly completed display homes of Sovereignty on Admiralty Drive and enjoy a visual feast of design elegance!

COOK'S CORNER

Roberto, owner of Il Tratto Ra Ro, offers a warm welcome.

Dining Out At Il Tratto Ra Ro

Welcome to Breakfast Point – the home of cultural, culinary delights!

Only five minutes drive from Breakfast Point, Il Tratto Ra Ro is a restaurant offering diners a cultural feast of traditional Italian cuisine and atmosphere. On any night of the week you'll find the tables out front filled with diners enjoying the outdoors and the lively staff ensuring a constant flow of service and food. Inside, the atmosphere is punctuated with sounds of Italy; traditional Italian music and plenty of Italian conversation.

The smell from the burning embers of the pizza oven will not only transport diners back to holidays in Italy, but also insist upon the sampling of the crusty home bread, pulled from the traditional oven whilst wine is poured.

"We are a family business," says Vanessa, daughter of owner Roberto. "Dad oversees, manages and basically runs the restaurant. Mum, Rita, is the cook; famous for the gnocchi she makes by hand. Valerio is the pizza cook, preparing the pizza base like we do back home in Rome: thin and well cooked on the bottom. I also oversee the running of the restaurant, as well as waitressing and anything else that needs being done."

To step inside this restaurant is to step inside the family home; hearty servings of dishes such as the linguine gamberetti (prawns, radicchio, cherry tomato, olive oil, chili and garlic) or the misto di mare (mixed seafood grill) are all prepared by hand using sauces and stocks from traditional recipes.

On the night I visited, I began with the antipasto freddo (a selection of marinated vegetables), which was large enough for two and served with the homemade woodfired bread, followed by a generous portion of the cozze al sugo (muscles in tomato, garlic and chilli) – a taste sensation for any seafood lover. Not only was my meal sensational but the price was reasonable with entrees around $15.00 and mains around $25.00.

Il Tratto Ra Ro is BYO and open lunch Tuesday to Friday and Sunday 12.00-3.00pm and dinner Monday to Sunday from 6.00pm-10.30pm. Bookings are necessary for 4 or more and essential for any number over the weekend. The restaurant also caters for business lunches offering pre-ordering and set menu

Recipes

Tasty Spring Sensations from the Kitchen Of Il Tratto Ra Ro

CARPACCIO DI VITELLA

Enough thinly sliced raw veal to cover the serving plate to be used

English mustard,
Extra virgin olive oil,
Fresh lemon juice,
Finely ground sea salt and fresh pepper,
Finally shredded radicchio
Shaved parmesan cheese.

For this dish, you may want to purchase a medium sized piece of veal from your favourite butcher, a day ahead so you can freeze the meat. Once frozen, the veal is much easier to slice finely using a razor sharp knife. Layer the slices onto the plate and set aside.

To prepare the dressing, combine a teaspoon of mustard, a splash of olive oil, juice of ½ a lemon and salt and pepper to taste. The idea with Italian cooking is you measure by eye and prepare by taste so if you dip your finger into the dressing, your taste-buds will tell you if a little more oil or mustard is required. Allow to stand at least 15 minutes or prepare the day ahead.

Finally, sprinkle a generous handful of the finely shredded radicchio lettuce over the meat and sprinkle the shaved parmesan. Now add the dressing, and serve with fresh crusty bread.

INVOLTINI

This is a traditional recipe from the family kitchen's of Rome!

Veal slices (approx 3-5mm in thickness)
Provolone cheese (you can replace this with your own favourite cheese)
Baby spinach leaves
Dry white wine
Virgin Olive oil
Escallots,
Sultana
Cherry tomato

Take a veal slice and lay flat, then layer a piece of provolone and a couple of baby spinach leaves on top. Wrap like a sausage and secure with a toothpick. Continue to make as many as you need. Add all of these to your hot fry-pan and cook like a sausage. They will only need about 3-5 minutes as the veal is quite thin.

Once they have browned, add ½ to a cup of white wine, a little more olive oil (– then a little more again!) and the escallots. Allow juice to simmer for further 10 minutes then remove pan from heat. Serve immediately, placing meat around plate, removing tooth-pick and pouring over remaining juice. Finally, decorate with a sprinkle of saltana's and handful of halved cherry tomatoes. Simply scrumptious!

If you have any queries, or want to sample the dish from the kitchen from where the recipe came, you will just have to pop up to Il Tratto Ra Ro and speak to one of the family yourself!
